Market Commentary

The positive sentiment and increased liquidity from central banks that have been driving asset prices since the start of the year waned in April. Many of the asset classes that had been outperforming gave back some gains, particularly European and Japanese equities, Spanish government bonds and commodities. Concerns about the risks associated with the Eurozone sovereign crisis reemerged in April, while the fragility of the recoveries in some of the global economies became more evident. On the other hand the flight towards perceived safer asset classes was notable as AAA government bonds outperformed and German government bond yields fell to another record low level. Elsewhere US equities outperformed and have largely maintained the gains that were made since the start of the year, as the economic recovery there continued to gain momentum, while the first quarter earnings season also showed that the corporate sector has remained robust.
